

VISIONEER STROBE XP 100

When it comes to scanning, flatbed models capable of accommodating A4 sheets are most people's automatic choice. But if you're on the move much of the time, or constricted by the amount of desk space you have available, there is another option. The Strobe XP 100 is a portable scanner, roughly the size of a litre bottle of water, that feeds sheets through a scanning mechanism that builds up a picture as it goes. The weight of the unit, 300g, is all you need to worry about as it draws all the power it needs from your PC or notebook's USB port. With an optical resolution of 600dpi and 36-bit internal colour, the Strobe XP 100 should cope well with all normal scanning tasks.

Of course, if you don't need the portability, you'll get better performance at a better price from a number of A4 flatbed scanners. However, there's no denying that this is a supremely portable scanner that you can use just about anywhere. The Strobe XP 100 is compatible with PCs only and is available for £149.99.
